

Physical Science Module 2 Review Paper

Unit 1 Review

- As it travels an object's path through a medium, it experiences an inertia resistance to the motion of the wave.
- Transverse waves (energy) is a wave that moves the frequency vertically perpendicular longitudinal waves travel through a series of compressions and rarefactions.
- Waves can be described by: amplitude, wavelength, frequency, speed, and direction of the wave.
- As it travels through a medium, particles are displaced and vibrate their own motion and the wave moves.
- Electromagnetic waves differ from other types of waves because they do not require matter through to travel.
- Electromagnetic waves consist of waves, you would need to know the wavelength and frequency to find the speed.
- Given the distance between two points in a wave and the time it takes for one wave to pass the points, you can determine the wavelength.
- The frequency of waves traveling perpendicular to the direction of oscillation is called transverse waves.
- Speed is finding through a medium the distance traveled perpendicular to the direction of the wave divided by the time it takes to travel that distance. The unit of speed is a distance unit per time unit.

Final Assignment Questions

Question:	Answer:
What type of waves can only travel through a medium?	Waves that can travel only through matter is called longitudinal waves.
What is pitch?	Pitch is frequency or the number of waves.
What is the amplitude of a wave and what does it depend on?	It is the height of the wave. The amplitude depends on the energy of the wave.
How does the type of medium affect a wave's speed?	The speed of a wave depends on the medium. The faster the speed of a wave.
Describe the relationship between frequency and wavelength?	The shorter the wavelength, the higher the frequency.
