Question 1:

Explain 'encoding' in the communication process.

Answer 1:

Encoding in the communication process involves taking ideas, giving them meaning and putting them in message forms. For example, while taking an examination you realize that you have not brought your pen and you ask your friend for it, i.e., encode a message that you need a pen.

Question 2:

What is Decoding?

Answer 2:

The communication is translated into comprehensible forms once it has been encoded and transmitted across a channel. You might state, for instance, that you heard a bell or that something seems soft.

Question 3:

What is Empathy?

Answer 3:

Counselors must possess empathy in order to comprehend another person's feelings from that person's point of view. It's like putting oneself in another person's shoes and attempting to comprehend their suffering and confused emotions.

Question: 4

Differentiate between hearing and listening.

Answer 4:

Receiving information via sensory channels is a biological process that goes on during hearing. It is just a small portion of listening. Receiving, paying attention, assigning meaning, and responding to the message being provided are all steps in the act of listening.

Question: 5

What do you understand by the term skill?

Answer 5:

Skill is defined as proficiency or dexterity that is acquired or developed through training and experience.

Question 6:

What is paraphrasing?

Answer 6:

Paraphrasing involves the ability of a counselor to reflect on what the client says and feels using different words. Human communication becomes effective if the counselor understands and is again able to relate in his words what feelings and emotions the client has described.

Question 7:

Differentiate between verbal and non-verbal communication.

Answer 7:

Verbal communication involves using a language while non-verbal communication involves gestures, postures, eye-contact, clothing style and body movement.
