Investment in the Future

- Do not expect that appropriate communication of statistics is best achieved by increasing the number of statistical channels.
- Do not expect that the appropriate communication methods are the appropriate ones, and this can result in a lot of wasted time.
- Do not expect that appropriate communication is a simple task.
- Research has shown that a well-planned communication process can be more effective than a poorly planned one. This is especially true for the most important, high-stakes communication situations, such as those in which a crisis is occurring, or a major event is being planned.
- Do not expect that communication is a simple task, and that it can be done by a single person or a small group of people.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 15 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular or other medical problems. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group or a training group. The control group continued with their sedentary lifestyle, while the training group participated in a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The HR and EE were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The HR and EE of the training group were significantly higher than those of the control group at the end of the 12-week training program. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
