Spoken reinforcement can be the focus itself of a performance aimed to build positive and healthy attitudes and feelings, and other problems. The focus of spoken reinforcement is not feelings, most frequently and mostly, but reinforcing different body posture and good body alignment, or progressive movements while maintaining different body posture and good body alignment, although the way we structure a series will vary according to a number of factors, including your own strength. Finally, we have to understand, understanding the basic concepts of each spoken reinforcement, that we can use them in different ways.

When most people think of swimming, the first image they think of is often the "backstroke" (Fig. 10-15). Sometimes called backstroke, because it is the opposite of the "frontstroke" (swimming), the backstroke is the fastest stroke performed in the water. It is also one of the most popular and widely taught to be learned.

Glenn readily provides insight into these issues, explaining, for example, several factors that contribute to the popularity of your local African print brand prints. One of the key factors is the vibrant colors in the prints, which are often inspired by the colors of the African continent. Another factor is the unique patterns and designs that are often found in African print fabrics. These prints are often used in a variety of ways, from clothing to home decor, and they have become a popular choice for many people looking for a bold and colorful look.
