The nervous system is made up of the brain, spinal cord, and nerves. The brain is the control center of the body. It receives information from the senses and sends out instructions to the rest of the body. The spinal cord is a long, thin structure that runs down the back. It carries messages between the brain and the rest of the body. Nerves are bundles of fibers that carry messages between the brain, spinal cord, and the rest of the body.

The brain is divided into two halves, the left and right hemispheres. Each hemisphere has different areas that control different functions. The cerebrum is the largest part of the brain. It is responsible for thinking, feeling, and controlling the body. The cerebellum is a smaller part of the brain. It is responsible for balance and coordination. The brainstem is the part of the brain that connects the cerebrum and cerebellum to the spinal cord. It is responsible for basic functions like breathing and heart rate.
