Overview of Paper

- The goal of this project is to help you become more aware of various factors in your life (stressors, personality traits, relationships, health behaviors, etc.) that could potentially affect your physical health
- Throughout the semester you will have access to questionnaires on Canvas that measure health-related concepts discussed in lectures (for example, optimism). You are to complete these questionnaires and think about what your scores for each factor may mean for your physical health – is the factor assessed a potential health risk or is it potentially health-enhancing?
- Then, write up your interpretations of your results incorporating the research findings about these factors reviewed in class
- Lastly, you are to choose three areas of concern and describe specific actions you could take (behavioral objectives) that might decrease potential risks to your health

Overview

- Choose 5 more self-assessment questionnaires and do a write-up of each, including:
 - your results/scores
 - your interpretation of whether this area is a strength, weakness (risk), or neutral regarding your physical health
 - specific personal examples of manifestations of the factor in your life
 - specific details from the lecture material on what effects the factor can have on physical health and how
 - submit on Canvas the second part of the paper AND the previously graded first part by May 3, 2021
- From the 10 questionnaires you wrote up, pick 3 areas assessed in which you feel you could make some changes to reduce your risk of health issues.
 - for each area write 3 behavioral objectives stating what specific action you could take to try to reduce health risks associated with the factor assessed
 - give a specific reason (rationale) for how taking each action could be helpful for your health
 - turn in this third part of the paper (9 objectives total) by May 3, 2021
- Attach the Self-Assessment Profile (last page of this handout) to the end of your paper with results filled in for all 16 questionnaires listed
- Do not put your name on the paper, only your student I.D. number

Haladyna,Michael C. Rodriguez,2013-07-18 Since test items are the building blocks of any test learning how to develop and validate test items has always been critical to the teaching learning process As they grow in importance and use testing programs increasingly supplement the use of selected response multiple choice items with constructed response formats This trend is expected to continue As a result a new item writing book is needed one that provides comprehensive coverage of both types of items and of the validity theory underlying them This book is an outgrowth of the author s previous book Developing and Validating Multiple Choice Test Items 3e Haladyna 2004 That book achieved distinction as the leading source of guidance on creating and validating selected response test items Like its predecessor the content of this new book is based on both an extensive review of the literature and on its author s long experience in the testing field It is very timely in this era of burgeoning testing programs especially when these items are delivered in a computer based environment Key features include Comprehensive and Flexible No other book so thoroughly covers the field of test item development and its various applications Focus on Validity Validity the most important consideration in testing is stressed throughout and is based on the Standards for Educational and Psychological Testing currently under revision by AERA APA and NCME

Illustrative Examples The book presents various selected and constructed response formats and uses many examples to illustrate correct and incorrect ways of writing items

Strategies for training item writers and developing large numbers of items using algorithms and other item generating methods are also presented

Based on Theory and Research A comprehensive review and synthesis of existing research runs throughout the book and complements the expertise of its authors
