examines the role of neoliberalism and its impact on education in South Asia It contends that education is in a state of crisis across the world This is reflected not only in the way the state has withdrawn to pave way for private capital but also in the manner in which knowledge and ways of understanding the world are being challenged by manipulation and adverse influences A process of factoryisation is underway as disciplining of human minds and redefinition of the purpose of human existence are being geared to fall in line with the needs of private capital The book brings together incisive contributions from India Sri Lanka Pakistan and Nepal to explore newer possibilities to deal with the educational crisis and looks at a range of critical themes in education pedagogy teacher learner relationship teacher education the state of the university and policy Rich in content critical and insightful this book will be a valuable addition for scholars and researchers of education and education policy sociology public policy and South Asian Studies      Becoming Scientists Rusty Bresser,Sharon Fargason,2013 Most important to being a good science teacher is holding the expectation that all students can be scientists and think critically Providing a thinking curriculum is especially important for those children in diverse classrooms who have been underserved by our educational system OCo Becoming Scientists Good science starts with a question perhaps from the teacher at the start of a science unit or from the children as they wonder what makes a toy car move how food decomposes or why leaves change color Using inquiry science children discover answers to their questions in the same way that scientists doOCothey design experiments make predictions observe and describe offer and test explanations and share their conjectures with others In essence they construct their own understanding of how the world works through experimentation
