RECORD CHANGER

(UAS)

Operating Instructions

THIS Record Changer is designed to play all of the existing types of gramophone records in common use. First, there is the record that rotates at a speed of 78 revolutions per minute. This type has been in common use for many years. Generally this record is produced in two diameters, 10" and 12", playing respectively about 34 and 5 minutes per side. This record changer will play a total of ten records of average thickness at one loading, and the different diameters can be mixed; the machine itself will select the correct conditions for each diameter WITHOUT any adjustment. The only manual adjustment necessary is to turn the Pickup to the 78 position and rotate the speed control knob to the 78 position. Secondly, there is the record that rotates at 33½ revolutions per minute. This is commonly called the LP or Long Playing type. It is generally produced in two diameters—12" and 10". The playing time is much longer per side than with the old 78 r.p.m. type. Thus, one side of the 12" diameter can play up to 20 minutes. Again this record changer will accept a mixed loading of the different diameters and will automatically select the correct conditions for each. Again the only manual adjustment is the Pickup to the 33½ position and the speed change knob also to the 33½ position. Thirdly, there is the record that rotates at 45 revolutions per minute. This is only produced in the 7" diameter size. Some of these records are sold with a large centre hole which must have an adaptor plate fitted to reduce the hole size to the common standard size. Three such adaptors are supplied with every "Monarch" record changer. The more recent tendency is to sell 45 r.p.m. records with the standard small hole, allowing this centre to be pushed out when the large hole is required. With these records the speed must be set to the 45 position and the pick-up set to the 33½ position. When 45 r.p.m. records, manufactured with the large diameter centre hole, are played regularly it is desirable to purchase a special 45 spindle accessory. This accessory when fitted to the changer increases the centre spindle size to that of the large hole in the 45 r.p.m. records and improves the playing condition of these records very considerably. This spindle accessory can be fitted to the changer in a matter of seconds and is readily available on request. Fourthly there is the record that rotates at 16½ revolutions per minute. This is at present only produced in the 7" diameter size. Generally speaking, it is advisable to play these records singly. Some of these records are manufactured with a very large centre hole. In such cases they are sold with a special cardboard adaptor which reduces this hole to the standard size for normal use. Many records are, however, manufactured with the small standard centre hole. With these records set speed change knob to the 16½ position and the pick-up to the 33½ position. Place the record on the turntable, and play as instructed under "Manual Operation."

OPERATION

This record changer will operate only on AC mains. Units are normally despatched from the factory connected for 200/250 volts unless otherwise requested. To change the voltage range, refer to the VOLTAGE note and diagram.

Loading.—Lift the record Control Arm by holding it at the far end (i.e. end furthest away from the Centre Spindle) and then swing it clear of the records. Then, taking each record singly place it on the Centre Spindle resting the first record on the spindle ledge. Hold the record in position with the left hand and load the others with the right hand in the same way. When all records are in position, replace the Record Control Arm over the Centre Spindle. If the records are all of one diameter it may be more convenient to group the ten together, see that the centre holes are all in line and place the group on the Centre Spindle.

Starting Up.—Make sure that the pickup stylus is correct, that is either 78 or 33-45 and similarly the Speed Knob. The pick-up is correctly set for 78 r.p.m. records when knob at the front of the pickup is so positioned that the number 78 (Std) is upright. To position the pickup for long playing records the numbers 33-45 (LP) must be upright. Then move the On/Off/Manual/Reject Knob to the left firmly but not too roughly. That is all that is required.

Rejecting.—To reject a record, merely move the On/Off/Manual/Reject Knob to the LEFT.

When the last record is finished the machine will switch itself off automatically.

Manual Operation.—To play records singly on the "Monarch" record changer the following procedure should be adopted. Place required record on the turntable manually and replace Control Arm in its operating position. Turn On/Off/Manual/Reject switch to the 'Manual' position only. The turntable will now revolve at the selected speed. Lift the pickup off its rest and place in position on record. The record will now play and when completed the pick-up will return to rest and the unit will switch off automatically in the normal manner.

TO REMOVE THE RECORDS.—Lift the Record Control Arm and turn it out of the way. Grasp the records together and lift them gently from the Centre Spindle, easing them past the ledge on the spindle.
