

A Guide to your Service Learning Experience

Getting started

- Check it out! www.nhcc.edu/servicelearning
- See a partner you like? To contact a community partner directly see the Quick Reference Guide.
- Many partners have established processes. Follow the volunteer tabs on their websites, then notify your instructor and the Service Learning department at WS-SRVL@nhcc.edu letting them know which partner you are working with and to keep track of your hours.
- Not sure where to start? Complete the Student Interest Questionnaire, then call 763-424-0752 or 763-488-0264 to schedule an appointment with Troy Nellis. Due to high call volume, please leave a message with only one number.

Things to consider

- Review your syllabus and note any specific instructions that are given in class regarding service learning.
- Step outside of your comfort zone and try new things you have never done before. Isn't that what college is all about? You may be surprised by what you learn.
- This opportunity is a chance for you to experience hands on learning at its best.
- Undeclared in your major? Unsure of your career? Service Learning provides a window. This is a great opportunity to try different careers before committing large amounts of time, money and energy to something that in the end, you don't want to do.
- Keep it sustainable, choose one volunteer opportunity, there is always plenty of time to do more.

Service Learning is Valuable!

- Today's resume requires volunteering.
- Scholarships now require community service.
- This is an opportunity to hone your skills and abilities while helping others.

Serve and Learn Florence Fay Pritchard, George I. Whitehead, III, 2004-07-22 This volume makes two important contributions First it provides a framework grounded in theory and best professional practice that middle and high school teachers their students and community partners can use to design implement and evaluate service learning projects that address authentic community needs Second it demonstrates ways collaborative service learning can enhance students intellectual development promote their academic achievement strengthen their citizenship skills and accelerate the kinds of educational accountability and reform initiatives emphasized in the national educational standards movement and the 2002 No Child Left Behind Act Serve and Learn Implementing and Evaluating Service Learning in Middle and High Schools provides what may be the only comprehensive guide to implementing assessing and celebrating service learning in today's middle and high schools emphasizes and explicates a collaborative approach to service learning in which teachers, students, and community partners team together to advance learning and meet genuine community needs. It demonstrates how service learning teams use key elements of standards-based education, multiple intelligences theory, and cooperative learning to guide project development, implementation, assessment, and evaluation. It offers optional designs for service learning projects that are suitable for use by interns and beginning teachers as well as by experienced and master teachers and that can be used in a developmental sequence by school and community partners to build from small individual projects toward school system and community-wide projects. It includes end-of-chapter activities that help those who use the book as a text to practice the model and its strategies and use results to create their own service learning projects. The book is organized in three parts that present service learning along a theoretical to practical continuum. Part I lays the foundations for the method by proposing a collaborative model for service learning. Part II explicates this model and explains the four sets of processes that teams use to commit to a project, cooperatively determine students' project outcomes, and ways to measure them. It develops learning activities to help students achieve outcomes and then evaluate their projects and celebrate growth. Part III provides resources for carrying out the collaborative model. A wide range of educators will find this book useful. Its distinctive contributions and features are particularly valuable for teacher educators, students, and community partners already committed to service learning projects; to those who are introducing service learning into their practice; and to instructional supervisors, school administrators, and community agencies seeking to create a climate for service learning or to enrich initiatives already underway.
