

Character Analysis of Iago from Othello

"Iago is a villain who is thoroughly bad and cold, yet he may be admired for his intelligence, understanding of the human spirit and his ability to manipulate certain individuals to believe him." Of all the characters in Shakespeare's Othello, none is more complex and unknown than Iago. He displays a duplicitous character, honest and kind on the outside but truly a pure, evil and malignant person on the inside. Throughout the play he comes up with evil ideas to turn all his friends, who trust him, like Othello and Cassio against each other. He achieves this by penetrating their deepest fears and concerns, into a web of hatred "make the net that shall enmesh them all".

. (act 2 scene 3. line 339). From this statement in Iago's soliloquies, many come to a conclusion that Iago is in fact the stage villain in the play.

Yes I agree with this to a certain extent, however I do believe that Iago has reasonable motives for being the villain he is. He was simply unhappy about the way his life was turning out. Iago believed in a world of just, he believed that nothing was going his way, he did not gain lieutenantcy, his rank in society was completely reliable on Othello, he was jealous of Othello and Cassio, and most of all honesty was getting him nowhere. In my essay I will prove that Iago was a man of great intelligence but not one of pure villainy. The crimes and murders that occurred could not have happened without the villain which lurked inside the other characters in the play.

Being the intelligent man he is, Iago simply enflamed a jealousy that was already there and therefore cannot be solely responsible for the actions of others. Throughout the play every character at one point referred to Iago as an honest man. Othello says in "A man he is of honesty and trust" before he left Desdemona in the care of Iago. Othello says, "I know Iago thy honesty and love..." when leaving the drunken brawl.

Cassio said, "I never knew a Florentine more kind and honest" after Iago had given him advice on his job. Desdemona states, "O, that's an honest fellow" after Emilia brings up the fact that Iago is worried about Cassio's job. Iago is seen as deceivably honest throughout the play. Iago must have been an honest man prior to the plot against Othello and Cassio, and this shows that he was not always a villain. Iago was probably a man of honesty his entire life, and now that he was reaching the age of 28 "...I hath looked upon the world four times seven years" (act 1 scene 3), he realised that his life was not going the way he had planned. All he desired was the position as lieutenant, second in command to Othello.

Hoping that this way he would receive more respect and of course a higher status. He had proved himself to Othello, yet the position he so much desired was given Cassio "one Michael Cassio". Iago was angry and
