Creating a Life Together Diana Leafe Christian, 2003-06-01 Everything you need to know to create an intentional community from scratch An intentional community is a group of people who have chosen to live or work together in pursuit of a common ideal or vision An ecovillage is a village scale intentional community that intends to create ecological social economic and spiritual sustainability over several generations The 90s saw a revitalized surge of interest in intentional communities and ecovillages in North America the number of intentional communities listed in the Communities Directory increased 60 percent between 1990 and 1995 But only 10 percent of the actual number of forming community groups actually succeeded Ninety percent failed often in conflict and heartbreak After visiting and interviewing founders of dozens of successful and failed communities along with her own forming community experiences the author concluded that the successful 10 percent had all done the same five or six things right and the unsuccessful 90 percent had made the same handful of mistakes Recognizing that a wealth of wisdom were contained in these experiences she set out to distill and capture them in one place Creating a Life Together is the only resource available that provides step by step practical how to information on how to launch and sustain a successful ecovillage or intentional community Through anecdotes stories and cautionary tales about real communities and by profiling seven successful communities in depth the book examines the successful 10 percent and why 90 percent fail the role of community founders getting a group off to a good start vision and vision documents decision making and governance agreements legal options finding financing and developing land structuring a community economy selecting new members and communication process and dealing well with conflict Sample vision documents community agreements and visioning exercises are included along with abundant resources for learning more

Debtor Nation Louis Hyman, 2012-10-28 The story of personal debt in modern America Before the twentieth century personal debt resided on the fringes of the American economy the province of small time criminals and struggling merchants By the end of the century however the most profitable corporations and banks in the country lent money to millions of American debtors How did this happen The first book to follow the history of personal debt in modern America Debtor Nation traces the evolution of debt over the course of the twentieth century following its transformation from fringe to mainstream thanks to federal policy financial innovation and retail competition How did banks begin making personal loans to consumers during the Great Depression Why did the government invent mortgage backed securities Why was all consumer credit not just mortgages tax deductible until 1986 Who invented the credit card Examining the intersection of government and business in everyday life Louis Hyman takes the reader behind the scenes of the institutions that made modern lending possible the halls of Congress the boardrooms of multinationals and the back rooms of loan sharks America's newfound indebtedness resulted not from a culture in decline but from changes in the larger structure of American capitalism that were created in part by the choices of the powerful choices that made lending money to facilitate consumption more profitable than lending to invest in expanded production From the origins of car financing to the creation of subprime lending Debtor Nation presents a nuanced history of consumer credit practices in the United States and shows how little loans became big business
