House Mountain divided

House Mountain looms in the distance beyond Virginia Military Institute on Thursday. The mountain is owned by the Virginia Outdoors Foundation.

The future of the huge Rockbridge landmark is uncertain — will there be logging or pure preservation?

LEXINGTON — Twenty-five years ago, thousands of people pinched their dollars together and bought a primitive mountain in Rockbridge County for $325,000. Not just any mountain, but an iconic double-peak formation that lends to residents of Rockbridge County the same sense of place and direction that Roanoke's have in their relationship with Mill Mountain and its star.

"One can hardly be anywhere in Rockbridge County and not see House Mountain. Some of our most prized views are of House Mountain," said Barbara Walsh, executive director of the Rockbridge Area Conservation Council. "If you go into any art gallery around here, you'll find paintings, stained glass and jewelry. It is a sacred place, a very special place and emblematic of what we are and what we are."

Unlike Mill Mountain, House Mountain stands as a centerpiece for improvements as it did in 1989 when members of the

VA falls short on care for women

An Associated Press review found that female veterans were placed on a wait list at a higher rate than male vets.

By Garance Burke
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Already pilloried for long wait times for medical appointments, the beleaguered Department of Veterans Affairs has fallen short of another commitment: to attend to the needs of the rising ranks of female veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan, many of them of child-bearing age.

Even the head of the VA's office of women's health acknowledged that persistent shortcomings remain in caring for the 100,000 female vets seen last year at its hospitals and clinics — despite an investment of more than $1.3 billion since 2008, including the training of hundreds of medical professionals in the fundamentals of treating the female body.

According to an Associated Press review of VA e-mail documents, inspector general reports and interviews:

■ Nationwide, nearly one in four VA hospitals does not have a full-time gynecologist on staff. And about 140 of the 920 community-based clinics serving veterans in rural areas do not have a designated women's health provider, despite the goal that every clinic would have one.

■ When community-based clinics refer veterans to a nearby university or private medical facility to be screened for breast cancer, more than half the time their mammogram results are not provided to patients within two weeks, as required under VA policy.

■ Female veterans have been placed on the VA's Electronic Wait List at a higher rate than male veterans. All new patients who cannot be scheduled for an appointment within 30 days are placed on that wait list.

■ And according to a VA press release last year, female veterans of child-bearing age were far more likely to be prescribed medications that can cause birth defects than were women being treated for other problems.

"Are there problems? Yes."

'Flawed system' fuels rise in child immigration

An investigation found that many children who flee to the U.S. are staying in the country for years with few to no consequences.

By Alicia A. Caldwell
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Thousands of immigrant children fleeing poverty and violence in Central America cross alone into the United States each year in American cities, attend public schools and possibly work here five years without consequences.

The chief reasons are an overburdened, deeply flawed system of immigration courts and a 2002 law intended to protect children's welfare, an Associated Press investigation finds.

Driving the dramatic increases in these immigrants is the recognition throughout Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador that children who make the dangerous trip can effectively remain in the U.S. for years

See IMMIGRATION, 6

Young detainees sleep in a cell at a customs facility in Toluca, Mexico. Immigrant children often spend a month in custody before reuniting with their parents.
