Microbiological Safety in U.S. and Foreign Laboratories G. Briggs Phillips, 1961 A study of microbiological safety in 102 laboratories in 18 countries shows that methods used to control laboratory accidents and illnesses vary widely and that only a few laboratories are reasonably successful Considering the various available approaches for improving safety in the handling of infectious microorganisms there is need for critical experimental evaluation to determine under what conditions improvements are or are not desirable and the effectiveness of those changes made Of special interest to the Department of the Army would be the ability of laboratories throughout the free world to operate safely with infectious microorganisms under non peacetime conditions Through continued analysis of the world wide status of microbiological safety and through improved communications with foreign laboratories the Biological Laboratories could gather information applicable in its safety program and make a significant contribution to the ability of other laboratories to safely carry out biological defense programs Author
