

BIG QUESTION

My PAW-sitively PAW-some Hy-PAW-thesis

By Preston D.A.
De Leon

PROCEDURE

- 1. I put some treats on the table.
- 2. I let the cats try to get the treats out of the table using their paws. Then I dropped the cat treats down of each cat to see which paw they would use to play with the treat. I also put food on the ground of each cat to see if they would use it off. For each cat I marked if they used their right or left paw. I tried three tests every time to see what would happen.

CONCLUSION

The cats that I tested mostly did not have dominant paws. The cats that I tested in the right sometimes. Sometimes the cats used their left, right, or both paws. Some of the cats had a dominant left paw and some had a dominant right, but they seemed to just use whichever would help them when they couldn't get to the treat. They sometimes even used their head to get the treat.

What I Learned

I learned that sometimes the cats were confused in their paws, but sometimes they were more confident than the other cats were during tests. I learned some cats were both paws, some were right paws, and some were left paws. I also learned that I was right about the cats.

RESULTS

Research

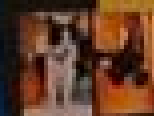

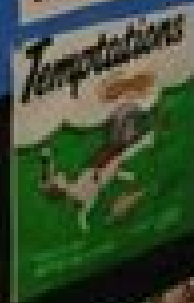

I found that cats use their paws to do many things. I was able to find out that cats use their paws to walk, run, jump, and play. I also found that cats use their paws to scratch and to hold things. I was able to find out that cats use their paws to do many things.

HYPOTHESIS

If cats are made to do different tasks, they will show a pattern of paw preference.
