- As a wave travels through a medium, it transports energy but does not transport matter in the direction of the wave.
- Transverse waves are waves in a direction (perp to the frequency) and the wave travels longitudinal waves travel through a series of compressions and rarefactions.
- Waves can be described by amplitude, wavelength, and period. Each one represents the wave.
- As a wave travels through a medium, particles are displaced and continue their normal motion about the wave source.
- Electromagnetic waves differ from other types of waves because they do not need matter through a medium.
- A wavelength is the distance of a wave. You would need to know the medium characteristics to know the wavelength.
- Given the distance between two points in a wave and the time it takes you can calculate the wavelength.
- As frequency is period frequency (period is the time of one full cycle in a wave).
- Speed is distance through a medium. As a transverse wave, particles of matter in the same direction the wave is traveling. This type of wave is a longitudinal wave.
- Because the particles move parallel to the direction of the wave, it is called longitudinal wave.
