Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at baseline and after 12 weeks. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during maximal exercise compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness in sedentary, middle-aged men.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, suppose the price for the output rises. The producer will want to produce more of the output, and this will require more inputs. The producer will hire more workers and rent more land and capital. The producer's demand for inputs will increase.
