

A More Connected World

Imagine the size of the Earth, and then draw 2.5 billion lines over it. According to one estimate, this is the smallest number of connections that are currently made through social media, with both followers and friends. Social media is the term used to describe any online community or network in which users create and share content and ideas with others. In these types of networks, people form intricate webs of relationships, share pictures and messages, connect with public figures, participate in events and classes, raise money for causes, and advertise their businesses. Social media affects our lives in countless good ways. Unfortunately, people such as child predators, bullies, and scammers can also use social media for hurtful purposes. In addition, ordinary people sometimes use bad judgement with social-media posts that leads to negative consequences, and can even become addicted to communicating through the Internet so much that they lose touch with reality. Despite these problems, I think social media has enough positive potential that cancels out the negatives.

If used in a responsible way, social media allows people to achieve hundreds of things more easily than without it. One of the greatest advantages of these applications is that they bring people together. For example, my family uses Skype to chat with my grandparents in Hungary nearly every day. And my mother communicates with the members of the yoga class she teaches through a Meetup app on her phone. Old friends can reunite and current friends communicate more easily through Facebook or Instagram. By using a Twitter feature called Hashtags people are able to comment and share ideas in real time, such as during the 2013 New York City mayoral debate, when voters were able to ask questions to the candidates using #NYCDebate. It is even possible to follow news reporters through Twitter and suggest ideas to them. Compared to watching the news on television, using a feed like Mashable is much more efficient because people choose what sources their news comes from. They also have the ability to choose what topics they receive information about. In nations such as Venezuela where news is restricted by the government, citizens can convey to large groups of people what events are really taking place by posting videos on Youtube.

Social media's advantages extend to education, non-profits, and business. I am currently taking a massive open online course (MOOC) offered by Stanford University in which the instructor announces the assignments to over 5,000 students through her Facebook feed. This online class challenges teams from across the globe to communicate and create projects together through Google+. Because of its ability to reach thousands of people at the same time, social media can also be used to raise awareness for and funds for charities and causes. For example, Island Beach State Park, a nonprofit organization that protects animals' natural habitats, encourages people to donate through their Twitter feeds. Virtually any charity today maintains a Facebook or Twitter presence. Likewise, most businesses have Instagram or Facebook links to notify potential customers of events and sales. Another way that social media helps business is by facilitating inexpensive advertising. While advertising during the Super Bowl costs millions of dollars, maintaining a social media is free. Social media has seemingly unlimited capabilities, and people are still figuring out creative ways to use it in positive ways.
