Question	Answer
"How do I estimate the distance from Earth to the nearest star system?" (2015)	The distance from Earth to the nearest star system, Proxima Centauri, is approximately 4.2 light years. To estimate this, you can use the formula: Distance = Speed of Light x Time. The speed of light is approximately 300,000,000 meters per second, and the time is 4.2 years. This gives a distance of approximately 130 billion kilometers.
"What are some ways to measure the distance from Earth to the nearest star system?" (2015)	There are several ways to measure the distance from Earth to the nearest star system. One way is to use the parallax method, which involves measuring the apparent shift in the position of a star as Earth orbits the Sun. Another way is to use the Doppler effect, which involves measuring the change in the wavelength of light from a star as it moves towards or away from Earth. A third way is to use the Hubble Space Telescope, which can measure the distance to stars by observing their spectral lines.
