for all those movie fanatics out there      The Content Pool Alan J. Porter, 2012-02-15 All companies no matter what industry they are in or what product or service they create do four basic things Offer something for sale sell it collect money for it and create content about what they do Product development Marketing Sales and Finance are all essential to the organization and are typically managed at the VP or CXO level yet a company's content which contains all of its intellectual property is often overlooked The Content Pool Leveraging Your Company's Largest Hidden Asset makes the case for placing content creation management and distribution on a par with other core strategic business activities Inside the Book Identifying Your Content Organizing Your Content Managing Your Content Leveraging Your Content The Case for a Chief Content Officer Bibliography and Index      Cultivating Commons Philip C. Brown, 2011-03-31 Cultivating Commons challenges the common understanding of Japanese economic and social history by uncovering diverse landholding practices in early modern Japan In this first extended treatment of multiple systems of farmland ownership Philip Brown argues that it was joint landownership of arable land not virtually private landownership that characterized a few large areas of Japan in the early modern period and even survived in some places down to the late twentieth century The practice adapted to changing political and economic circumstances and was compatible with increasing farm involvement in the market Brown shows that land rights were the product of villages and to some degree daimyo policies and not the outcome of hegemony and shoguns cadastral surveys Joint ownership exhibited none of the tragedy of the commons predicted by much social science theory and in fact explicitly structured a number of practices compatible with longer term investment in and maintenance of arable land Exploring early modern society from the ground up this work provides new perspectives on how villagers organized themselves and their lands and how their practices were articulated or were not articulated to higher layers of administration It employs an unusually wide array of sources and methodologies In addition to manuscripts from local archives it exploits interviews with modern informants who used joint ownership and a combination of modern geographical tools hazard maps soil maps digital elevation models geographic information systems technologies to investigate the degree to which the most common form of joint ownership reflected efforts to ameliorate flood and landslide hazard risk as well as microclimate variation Further it explores the nature of Japanese agricultural practice its demand on natural resources and the role of broader environmental factors all of which infuse the study with new environmental perspectives and approaches Cultivating Commons will be welcomed by Japanese historians those in other regional national fields and social scientists concerned with issues of resource management economic development and rural society      Architecture and Architects in Socialist Poland Błażej Ciarkowski, 2025-09-30 The book presents the history of Polish architecture and architects in the years 1944-1989 focusing on selected issues including both the development of architecture itself and the conditions of practicing architecture in the socialist country The history of architecture and architects in socialist Poland is described not only from the perspective of an architectural historian and researcher but also from the perspective of active participants in the events described The text is based on historical sources and literature as well as on numerous interviews with architects and urban planners who played an important role in post war reconstruction implementation of the socialist realist doctrine creation of the most significant buildings and monuments and development of the local version of socialist modernism or post modernism It gives the floor back to those whose voice was hardly heard after the collapse of the socialist system in 1989 The book should become an interesting source of information for those interested in the material culture of former socialist countries Although it focuses on socialist Poland it can be used as material for comparative studies of mutual relations between East and West in post war Europe as well as for analysis of the situation of architecture and architects in socialist countries
