Personal Effects Deborah Holdstein:

Personal Effects Deborah Holdstein, David Bleich, 2002 Holdstein and Bleich compile a volume that cuts across the grain of current orthodoxy. These editors and contributors argue that it is fundamental in humanistic scholarship to take account of the personal and collective experiences of scholars, researchers, critics, and teachers. They contend that humanistic inquiry cannot develop successfully at this time without reference to the varieties of subjective, inter-subjective, and collective experience of teachers and researchers. In composition studies, they point out an important strand of theory has continuously mined the personal experience of individual writers where they stand, even in a destabilised sense of that idea. Such substantive accounts of the inner academic life provide appropriate and rich contexts for further study and analysis. With this volume, then, these scholars move us to explore the intersections of the social with subjectivity, with voice, ideology, and culture, and to consider the roles of these in the work of academics who study writing and literature. Taken together, the essays in this collection carry forward the idea that the personal, the candidly subjective, and inter-subjective must be part of the subject of study in humanities scholarship. They propose an understanding of the personal in scholarship that is more helpful because more clearly anchored in human experience.

Compelling Confessions Suzanne Diamond, 2010-12-10 Compelling Confessions The Politics of Personal Disclosure is a collection of essays whose shared purpose is to offer an accessible interdisciplinary exploration of the social dynamics behind confessional discourse. As various contributors to this collection demonstrate, confession is ubiquitous in contemporary culture, not only within psychological or therapeutic frameworks or literary analysis, but also in internet discussion groups, in the criminal justice system, in political rhetoric, in so-called reality and interview style television programming, in writing pedagogy, and increasingly in the testimonial strain observable in contemporary scholarship. Yet telling one's story raises questions not only about authorial intent or authenticity, but also about the pressures disclosure can impose upon its audiences. Far less ubiquitous than confessions themselves, as these contributors suggest, are the critical tools that general audiences might employ in order to better evaluate the rhetoric of personal disclosure. It is in fact the shortage of such tools, responses, and procedures that could be stated plainly and implemented by any reader or viewer that Compelling Confessions sets out to address.

Self Culture Writing foregrounds the possibility of autoethnography as a viable methodological approach and provides researchers and instructors with ways of understanding, crafting, and teaching autoethnography within writing studies. Interest in autoethnography is growing.
