

BIG QUESTION

My PAW-sitively PAW-some Hy-PAW-thesis

By Preston D.A.
De Leon

PROCEDURE

- 1. I put every cat in a room and I used to let the cats try to get the treats out of the tube using their paws. Then I dropped the cat treats in front of each cat to see which paw they would use to play with the treat. I also put food on the side of each cat to see if they would want it off. For each cat I marked if they used their right or left paw. I tried three tests every time to see what would happen.

CONCLUSION

The cats that I tested mostly did not have dominant paws. The cats that were in the right sometimes. Sometimes the cats used their left, right, or both paws. Some of the cats had a dominant left paw and some had a dominant right, but they seemed to just use whatever would help them when they couldn't get to the treat. They sometimes even used their head to get the treat.

What I Learned

I learned that sometimes the cats were a bit confused in their paws, but sometimes they were more interested than the other cats were. During tests, I learned some cats were both paws, some were left paws, and some were right paws. I also learned that I was right about the cats.

RESULTS

Research

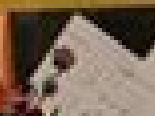

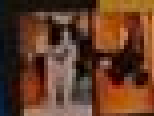

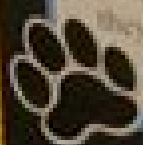

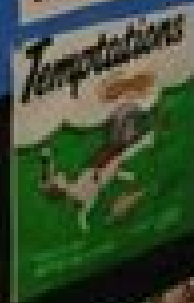

I found that some cats have a dominant paw. I also found that some cats use their head to get the treat. I also found that some cats use their left paw and some use their right paw.

HYPOTHESIS

If cats are made to do different tasks, they will show a pattern of paw preference.
