Rearming for the Cold War, 1945-1960 Elliott Vanveltner Converse, 2012 Book Description The first publication in a multivolume series on the history of the acquisition of major weapon systems by the Department of Defense author Elliott Converse presents a meticulously researched overview of changes in acquisition policies organizations and processes within the United States military establishment during the decade and a half following World War II Many of the changes that shaped the nature and course of weapons research and development production and contracting through the end of the century were instituted between 1945 and 1960 many of the problems that have repeatedly challenged defense policymakers and acquisition professionals also first surfaced during these years This study is the first to combine the histories of the Office of the Secretary of Defense OSD and the military services into one account The volume is organized chronologically with individual chapters addressing the roles of OSD the Army Navy and Air Force in two distinct periods United States

History of Acquisition in the Department of Defense, Volume 1 Elliott V. Converse, 2012-06-12 This volume is a history of the acquisition of major weapon systems by the United States armed forces from 1945 to 1960 the decade and a half that spanned the Truman and Eisenhower administrations following World War II These instruments of warfare aircraft armored vehicles artillery guided missiles naval vessels and supporting electronic systems when combined with nuclear warheads gave the postwar American military unprecedented deterrent and striking power 1 They were also enormously expensive The volume is organized chronologically with individual chapters addressing the roles of OSD the Army Navy and Air Force in two distinct periods The first roughly coinciding with President Truman's tenure covers the years from the end of World War II through the end of the Korean War in 1953 The second spans the two terms of the Eisenhower presidency from 1953 through early 1961 The year 1953 marked a natural breakpoint between the two periods The Korean War had ended President Eisenhower and his defense team began implementing the New Look a policy and strategy based on nuclear weapons which they believed would provide security and make it possible to reduce military spending The New Look's stress on nuclear weapons along with the deployment of the first operational guided missiles and the rapid advances subsequently made in nuclear and missile technology profoundly influenced acquisition in the services throughout the 1950s and the remainder of the century As used in this study the term acquisition encompasses the activities by which the United States obtains weapons and other equipment In surveying the history of acquisition between 1945 and 1960 this study discusses or refers in passing to many of the hundreds of weapon system programs initiated by the services in that period but it is not a weapons encyclopedia Instead it investigates a few major programs in depth in the belief that such detailed examination best reveals the evolution of acquisition policies organizations and processes and the various forces influencing weapons programs Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States. Advisory Committee on Weather Control,1958 National Military Establishments and the Advancement of Science and Technology P. Forman,José M. Sánchez-Ron,2001-11-30 To some philosophers seeking to understand the human condition technology is a necessary guide But to think through the complex human phenomenon of technology we must tackle philosophy of science philosophy of culture moral issues comparative civilizational studies and the economics of specific industrial and military technologies in their historical contexts The philosopher wants to grasp the technological factor in this troubled world even as we see it is only one factor and that it does not speak openly for itself Put directly our human troubles to a considerable extent have been transformed exaggerated distorted even degraded perhaps transcended by what engineers and scientists entrepreneurs and politicians have wrought But our problems are ancient problems of dominations struggles survival values in conflict greed and insane sadisms To get some conceptual light on the social reality which seems immediately to be so complicated a philosopher will need to learn from the historians of technology A few years ago the philosopher Elisabeth Straker concluded that a historical philosophy of technology is required since history and history alone provides all those concepts that form part of the repertoire of the philosophical analysis of technology And she added that this goes far beyond the triviality that like other cultural achievements technology has its historical development Now historical comprehension is no substitute for a logical methodology in the analysis of technological problems I. free market ideology of our time restructure the global economy and remake our political systems In short either we embrace radical change ourselves or radical changes will be visited upon our physical world The status quo is no longer an option In This Changes Everything Naomi Klein argues that climate change isn't just another issue to be neatly filed between taxes and health care It's an alarm that calls us to fix an economic system that is already failing us in many ways Klein meticulously builds the case for how massively reducing our greenhouse emissions is our best chance to simultaneously reduce gaping inequalities re-imagine our broken democracies and rebuild our gutted local economies She exposes the ideological desperation of the climate change deniers the messianic delusions of the would-be geoengineers and the tragic defeatism of too many mainstream green initiatives And she demonstrates precisely why the market has not and cannot fix the climate crisis but will instead make things worse with ever more extreme and ecologically damaging extraction methods accompanied by rampant disaster capitalism Klein argues that the changes to our relationship with nature and one another that are required to respond to the climate crisis humanely should not be viewed as grim penance but rather as a kind of gift a catalyst to transform broken economic and cultural priorities and to heal long-festered historical wounds And she documents the inspiring movements that have already begun this process communities that are not just refusing to be sites of further fossil fuel extraction but are building the next regeneration-based economies right now Can we pull off these changes in time Nothing is certain Nothing except that climate change changes everything And for a very brief time the nature of that change is still up to us
