Transparency in Assessment - Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson, Frans Prins, 2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research and educational practice both of which need to go beyond individual opinions and convictions

Consequently, supporters of large scale testing programs are now beginning to consider the potential of formative assessments to improve student achievement. The mission of this handbook is to comprehensively profile this burgeoning field of study. Written by leading international scholars and practitioners, each chapter includes a discussion of key issues that dominate formative assessment policy and practice today as well as those that are likely to affect research and practice in the coming years. Key features include: Comprehensive nineteen chapters cover all aspects of formative assessment including classroom assessment, large scale applications, technological applications, applications for special needs students, K-12 and post secondary applications, psychometric considerations, case studies, and discussion of alternative assessment formats such as portfolios and performance assessments. Integrative thoughtful attention is given to the integration of large scale and classroom assessments. Practical provides practical guidance on how to conduct formative assessments that generate credible information to guide instruction. Global provides perspectives from leading international scholars and practitioners whose expertise spans diverse settings, student populations, and educational systems. Accessible Style although grounded in the latest research, the book's style and tone has been carefully crafted to make it accessible to both the textbook and professional markets. The focus throughout the book is on the construct of writing and its assessment: what constitutes writing ability and how can it be defined in various contexts? This question cannot be answered without looking into the methodological question of how to validate and measure the construct of writing ability. Throughout the book, therefore, discussions integrate theoretical and methodological issues. A number of chapters discuss whether varying definitions and varying operationalizations of writing ability are needed in various contexts such as formative assessments versus summative assessments, large scale assessments versus individual assessments, different tasks, different genres, and different languages, but also different age groups. A range of rating methods is investigated and discussed in this book. The ongoing debate on holistic versus analytic ratings and the different underlying conceptions of writing proficiency is a pertinent matter on which a number of chapters in this volume shed new light. The matter is discussed and analyzed from various angles such as generalizability of judgements and usability in formative contexts. Another fundamental debate concerns computer scoring of written products. A nuanced discussion of its validity is presented in this volume. Teaching English Language Learners Through Technology Tony Erben, Ruth Ban, Martha Castañeda, 2008-09 In this book, authors explore the use of computers technology as a pedagogical tool to aid in
