Autonomic Nervous System

The Autonomic Nervous System is part of the nervous system that regulates involuntary functions. It controls the internal organs and glands of the body.

It is divided into two main branches:

- Sympathetic Nervous System (fight or flight)
- Parasympathetic Nervous System (rest and digest)

The Autonomic Nervous System is responsible for controlling the following functions:

- Heart rate
- Blood pressure
- Respiration
- Digestion
- Excretion
- Reproduction

The Autonomic Nervous System is controlled by the brain and spinal cord.

Brain and Spinal Cord

The brain and spinal cord are the central parts of the nervous system. They are responsible for processing information and sending out instructions to the rest of the body.

The brain is divided into three main parts:

- Cerebrum (the largest part, responsible for thinking and reasoning)
- Cerebellum (responsible for balance and coordination)
- Brainstem (responsible for basic life functions like breathing and heart rate)

The spinal cord is a long, thin, tube-like structure that runs down the back. It is responsible for carrying messages between the brain and the rest of the body.

This diagram illustrates the central nervous system, showing the brain and spinal cord. The brain is at the top, with the cerebrum, cerebellum, and brainstem labeled. The spinal cord extends downwards from the brainstem. The autonomic nervous system is shown as a network of nerves branching out from the spinal cord to various organs in the body.

Types of Nerve
