Macromolecular Crystallography Mark R. Sanderson, Jane V. Skelly, 2007-08-23 Macromolecular Crystallography is the study of macromolecules proteins and nucleic acids using X ray crystallographic techniques in order to determine their molecular structure The knowledge of accurate molecular structures is a pre requisite for rational drug design and for structure based function studies to aid the development of effective therapeutic agents and drugs The successful determination of the complete genome genetic sequence of several species including humans has recently directed scientific attention towards identifying the structure and function of the complete complement of proteins that make up that species a new and rapidly growing field of study called structural genomics There are now several important and well funded global initiatives in operation to identify all of the proteins of key model species One of the main requirements for these initiatives is a high throughput crystallization facility to speed up the protein identification process The extent to which these technologies have advanced calls for an updated review of current crystallographic theory and practice This practical reference book features the latest conventional and high throughput methods and includes contributions from a team of internationally recognized leaders and experts It will be of relevance and use to graduate students research scientists and professionals currently working in the field of conventional and high throughput macromolecular crystallography Technical Abstract Bulletin Defense Documentation Center (U.S.),1961-10 Structure ,2005 Western Industry ,1956 Audio Amateur ,1984 U.S. Camera and Travel ,1968 Nuclear Science Abstracts ,1973-11 Government Reports Announcements & Index ,1996 Personal Computing ,1979-07 Proceedings of the Japan Academy Nihon Gakushuin,2004 Macworld ,1997 Government Reports Annual Index ,1992 House Beautiful ,1978 Consumers Digest ,2001 Funworld ,1997 American Chemical Society Directory of Graduate Research, 1987
