

Graduation Speech

Good afternoon, dear faculty, staff, family, friends, and graduates. It is an honor to be speaking with you here today. Graduates of the class of 2012, CONGRATULATIONS!!!

While I was very honored to be invited to be the graduate speaker at the 2012 International Studies graduation ceremony, I admit that writing this speech was even harder than writing my thesis. And believe me, I would have never imagined that there would be anything harder than that. The hard part about it is that I was told that my graduation speech had to make you laugh first, then cry, and then inspire you. And it had to be short... So as you can see, that's not a very easy task to accomplish. But I'll try.

As I was thinking about this speech and reflecting on my experiences here at the Department of International Studies as a graduate student, I came up with a perfect analogy for my and my fellow

Cornerstone of the Nation Peter Banseok Kwon, 2024-09-01 Cornerstone of the Nation is the first historical account of the complex alliance of military and civilian forces that catapulted South Korea's conjoined militarization and industrialization under Park Chung Hee 1961-1979 Kwon reveals how Park's secret program to build an independent defense industry spurred a total mobilization of business science labor and citizenry all of which converged in military civilian forces that propelled an unprecedented model of modernization in Korea Drawing on largely untapped declassified materials from Korea and personal interviews with contemporaneous participants in the nascent defense industry as well as declassified US documents and other external sources Kwon weaves together oral histories and documentary evidence in an empirically rich narrative that details how militarization shaped the nation's rapid economic technological political and social transformation Cornerstone of the Nation makes the case that South Korea's arms development under Park may be the most durable and yet least acknowledged factor behind the country's rise to economic prominence in the late twentieth century Through an analysis that simultaneously engages some of the most contested issues in Korean historiography development literature contemporary politics and military affairs this book traces Korea's distinct pathway to becoming a global economic force

The Burdens of Aspiration Elsa Davidson, 2011 During the tech boom Silicon Valley became one of the most concentrated zones of wealth polarization and social inequality in the United States a place with a fast disappearing middle class persistent pockets of poverty and striking gaps in educational and occupational achievement along class and racial lines Low wage workers and their families experienced a profound sense of exclusion from the techno-entrepreneurial culture while middle class residents witnessing up close the seemingly overnight success of a new entrepreneurial class negotiated both new and seemingly unattainable standards of personal success and the erosion of their own economic security The Burdens of Aspiration explores the imprint of the region's success-driven public culture the realities of increasing social and economic insecurity and models of success emphasized in contemporary public schools for the region's working and middle class youth Focused on two disparate groups of students low income at-risk Latino youth attending a specialized program exposing youth to high tech industry within an underperforming public high school and middle income white and Asian students attending a high performing public school with informal connections to the tech elite Elsa Davidson offers an in-depth look at the process of forming aspirations across lines of race and class By analyzing the successes and sometimes unanticipated effects of the schools' attempts to shape the aspirations and values of their students she provides keen insights into the role schooling plays in social reproduction and how dynamics of race and class inform ideas about responsible citizenship that are instilled in America's youth Provided by publisher
