

Compare and Contrast

- When you compare and contrast, you tell how two or more things are alike and how they are different.
- Sometimes words such as like, as, however, and unlike signal comparisons or contrasts.

Directions Read the following passage. Then complete the chart below.

Schools in China and the United States are alike and different. In both countries, the school year is about 40 weeks long. However, in China students attend six days a week instead of five. Chinese elementary schools teach the same core subjects as U.S. schools, but politics, foreign language, and manual labor are taught too. In the United States, about the same amount of time is spent on English as on other subjects. However, in China, nearly 40 percent of class time is spent on Chinese because it is so difficult. Unlike U.S. students, Chinese students must pass exams to move up to junior high school (called junior middle school) or high school (called senior middle school). Finally, in the United States all children attend junior high school, but in China less than half of all children attend.

|                            | United States | China    |
|----------------------------|---------------|----------|
| Length of school year      | 40 weeks      | 40 weeks |
| Length of school week      | Five days     | Six days |

| Time spent on language     | 2.            |          |
| Entrance exams             | 3.            |          |
| Junior high attendance     | 4.            |          |
