Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 30 to 45 years of age, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of six women who did not exercise, and the exercise group consisted of six women who exercised for 10 weeks. The exercise group was instructed to exercise for 30 minutes, three times a week, at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The control group was instructed to remain sedentary. The subjects were monitored for 10 weeks. The HR and EE were measured at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had a significantly higher HR and EE than the control group at the end of the 10-week period. The HR of the exercise group increased from 140 to 150 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The HR of the control group remained at 140 beats per minute, and the EE remained at 1,800 kcal per day. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can increase the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The program included a combination of aerobic and resistance exercises. The results of the study showed that the program had a positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the women. The women who participated in the program showed significant improvements in their physical fitness, including increased aerobic capacity, muscle strength, and flexibility. Additionally, the women who participated in the program showed significant improvements in their psychological health, including reduced stress, improved mood, and increased self-esteem. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program can be an effective means of improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
