10. Abstract: This paper presents a new approach to the problem of finding a minimum spanning tree (MST) of a weighted undirected graph. The approach is based on the use of a new data structure called a "spanning tree forest" (STF). The STF is a forest of trees that are connected by edges of zero weight. The algorithm for finding the MST of a graph is based on the use of the STF. The algorithm is simple and efficient, and it can be implemented in a variety of programming languages.
