Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% of maximum HR. The control group remained sedentary. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during exercise at 60% of maximum HR. The HR and EE were significantly higher in the training group than in the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.

When you visit the Facebook website, you will see that there are 45,000,000 Facebook users. It is a very large number, but it is not the total number of people who use Facebook. It is only the number of people who have a Facebook account. There are many people who use Facebook but do not have a Facebook account. For example, many people use Facebook on their mobile phones, but they do not have a Facebook account. So, the number of people who use Facebook is much larger than the number of people who have a Facebook account.
