A Practical Guide to the Science and Practice of Afterschool Programming Joseph L. Mahoney, Gina Warner, 2015-01-12 Closing the gap between scientific research on afterschool programming and the practices occurring in these settings is the goal of this volume Both sources of knowledge are critical to developing the afterschool workforce's ability to provide high quality programming On the one hand this means afterschool staff should not work with young people until they have been adequately prepared which includes training in evidence based practices and properly supervised On the other hand it requires that scientists understand and study those aspects of afterschool programming most relevant to the needs of practitioners This volume includes perspectives from the afterschool workforce scientists who discuss the current research and the practitioners who know how afterschool programs operate in practice This is the 144th volume of New Directions for Youth Development the Jossey Bass quarterly report series dedicated to bringing together everyone concerned with helping young people including scholars practitioners and people from different disciplines and professions

Digital Media and Technology in Afterschool Programs, Libraries, and Museums Becky Herr-Stephenson, 2011 An investigation of how three kinds of youth organizations have integrated digital practices into their programs Digital media and technology have become culturally and economically powerful parts of contemporary middle class American childhoods Immersed in various forms of digital media as well as mobile and Web based technologies young people today appear to develop knowledge and skills through participation in media This MacArthur Report examines the ways in which afterschool programs libraries and museums use digital media to support extracurricular learning It investigates how these three varieties of youth serving organizations have incorporated technological infrastructure and digital practices into their programs what types of participation and learning digital practices support and how research in digital media and learning can contribute to better integration of technology within and across these organizations The authors review a range of programs including the long running Computer Clubhouse movement established in 1993 in partnership with MIT's Media Lab and then use the idea of media ecologies to investigate the role that digital media play or could play in these intermediary spaces for learning They call for less anecdotal more empirical and methodologically sound studies to help us understand the affordances of digital media for learning within and across these programs for research focused on the relationship between digital media and the effectiveness of youth serving organizations and for further study of schools within childhood media ecologies
