Adam Smith's Invisible Hand as Self-control Mechanism of Social Structures Tadeusz Szuba, 2022-11-07 This book shows how such a computational process functions how great is its power and versatility since it is possible to show how discoveries are made In 1759 Adam Smith realized that there must exist an additional powerful control mechanism behind Great Britain's authority and government explaining the extraordinary successes of Great Britain He called this the Invisible Hand Despite having used this term only 3 times the idea evokes extreme scientific and political emotions to this day If we apply a molecular model of computation such as in in Adleman's DNA computer a computational model for the Invisible Hand can be built to show how it affects a society It is a spontaneous unconscious distributed noncontinuous computational process on the platform of minds of e.g. people or ants Knowing this mechanism a future self steering and self optimization system for AI robot teams can be proposed e.g. for construction sites and rescue operations and Authority in Internet Governance investigates the hotly contested role of the state in today's digital society. The book asks: Is the state back in internet regulation? If so, what forms are state involvement taking and with what consequences for the future? The volume includes case studies from across the world and addresses a wide range of issues regarding internet infrastructure, data, and content. The book pushes the debate beyond a simplistic dichotomy between liberalism and authoritarianism in order to consider also greater state involvement based on values of democracy and human rights. Seeing internet governance as a complex arena where power is contested among diverse non-state and state actors across local, national, regional, and global scales, the book offers a critical and nuanced discussion of how the internet is governed and how it should be governed. Power and Authority in Internet Governance provides an important resource for researchers across international relations, global governance, science and technology studies, and law, as well as policymakers and analysts concerned with regulating the global internet. Farm Fresh Broadband Christopher Ali, 2021-09-21. An analysis of the failure of U.S. broadband policy to solve the rural-urban digital divide, with a proposal for a new national rural broadband plan. As much of daily life migrates online, broadband, high-speed internet connectivity has become a necessity. The widespread lack of broadband in rural America has created a stark urban-rural digital divide. In Farm Fresh Broadband, Christopher Ali analyzes the promise and the failure of national rural broadband policy in the United States and proposes a new national broadband plan. He examines how broadband policies are enacted and implemented, explores business models for broadband providers, surveys the technologies of rural broadband, and offers case studies of broadband use in the rural Midwest. Ali argues that rural broadband policy is both broken and incomplete: broken because it lacks coordinated federal leadership, and incomplete because it fails to recognize the important roles of communities, cooperatives, and local providers in broadband access. For example, existing policies favor large telecommunication companies, crowding out smaller, nimbler providers. Lack of competition drives prices up: rural broadband can cost 37 percent more than urban broadband. The federal government subsidizes rural broadband by approximately $6 billion. Where does the money go? Ali proposes democratizing policy architecture for rural broadband, modeling it after the wiring of rural America for electricity and telephony. Subsidies should be equalized, not just going to big companies. The result would be a multistakeholder system guided by thoughtful public policy and funded by public and private support.

Power and Authority in Internet Governance Blayne Haggart, Natasha Tusikov, Jan Aart Scholte, 2021-03-14 Power
