indicators Second we assess vulnerability of individual firms to a sudden stop in financing through a probit model using a panel of 18 countries in 2000 11 Results suggest that higher leverage and maturity exposures raise a firm's probability to become exposed to a funding shock while a larger firm size and buffers reduce it Further greater exchange rate flexibility can help mitigate corporate vulnerability Identification of firms at risk through the model suggests that some vulnerabilities may be building in Latin America led by leverage currency exposures and moderating buffers These effects are partially offset however by a significant reduction in maturity exposures Corporate Finance and Governance in Stakeholder Society Shinichi Hirota,2015-02-11 This book develops a new framework the stakeholder model that helps to understand corporate finance and governance in modern society where the sources of people's happiness have shifted from monetary to non-monetary factors. The book takes a more comprehensive approach than is typically found in the standard economics and finance literature by explicitly incorporating both the monetary and non-monetary interests of stakeholders and by examining the value creation of corporations from a much broader perspective. Specifically, the book addresses contemporary issues concerning corporate finance and governance worldwide, including: How should we define corporate value in stakeholder society? What is the role of modern corporations? What are the principles underlying corporate financing decisions? To what extent should shareholder rights be enhanced? What determines the effectiveness of a company's board of directors? What missions do firms set out and what is the role of mission statements? How can we understand the diversity of financial and governance systems among different countries? What legal and institutional reforms enhance or diminish corporate value in stakeholder society? The book will answer these questions theoretically and empirically. Quantitative Corporate Finance
