Aviation Maintenance Administrationman 3 & 2 Melvyn E. Freeman, 1980 Routine Book, 1918 Technological Change and Labor Markets Reyna Elizabeth Rodríguez Pérez, Liliana Meza González, 2024-10-28 In developed countries like the United States Germany and the UK it has been observed that workers who perform non routine activities either cognitive or manual have benefited in terms of employment and income while those performing routinary tasks have seen their job prospects and wages decline This has led to not only a polarization of the labor markets but also a decrease in certain measures of inequality This phenomenon has been attributed to task based technological change TBTC which differs from the skilled biased technological change in the fact that not only highly skilled workers have benefited from technology advancement This book presents evidence of how digitalization and TBTC are affecting the labor markets of different regions of the world and examines the factors that cause this inequality among nations It examines recent issues around the effect of TBTC on the labor market and the economy in general with a comparison of different countries in Central and Eastern Europe North America and Latin America as well as in other regions of the world The incorporation of these regions presents relevant particularities for the subject matter addressed in the book The book also considers questions such as how labor market effects differ by gender and what the impact of digital skills on employment inequalities and public policies might be In so doing it identifies the advances opportunities and changes that have taken place while also making public policy proposals This book will be a key reading to the global community of graduate students and researchers in the field of economics and specifically in the study of labor markets

Gender, Technology, and the Future of Work Mariya Brussevich,Ms.Era Dabla-Norris,Christine Kamunge,Pooja Karnane,Salma Khalid,Ms.Kalpana Kochhar,2018-10-09 New technologies digitalization artificial intelligence and machine learning are changing the way work gets done at an unprecedented rate Helping people adapt to a fast changing world of work and ameliorating its deleterious impacts will be the defining challenge of our time What are the gender implications of this changing nature of work How vulnerable are women's jobs to risk of displacement by technology. What policies are needed to ensure that technological change supports a closing and not a widening of gender gaps? This SDN finds that women on average perform more routine tasks than men across all sectors and occupations; tasks that are most prone to automation. Given the current state of technology, we estimate that 26 million female jobs in 30 countries (28 OECD member countries, Cyprus and Singapore) are at a high risk of being displaced by technology, i.e. facing higher than 70 percent likelihood of being automated within the next two decades. Female workers face a higher risk of automation compared to male workers: 11 percent of the female workforce relative to 9 percent of the male workforce, albeit with significant heterogeneity across sectors and countries. Less well educated and older female workers aged 40 and above as well as those in low skill clerical service and sales positions are disproportionately exposed to automation. Extrapolating our results, we find that around 180 million female jobs are at high risk of being displaced globally. Policies are needed to endow women with required skills, close gender gaps in leadership positions, bridge digital gender divide as ongoing digital transformation could confer greater flexibility in work benefiting women, ease transitions for older and low skilled female workers.

Modelling Value Herbert Jodlbauer, Jan Olhager, Richard J. Schonberger, 2012-01-05. The publication contains a selection of the best double blind reviewed papers presented, discussed and revised by participants of the 1st International Conference on Value Chain Management in Austria Steyr May 2011. The Value Chain Management VCM Conference presents scientific insights relevant to management as well as their translation into the practice of management. The conference focus is on the demand chain, i.e. sales, production, purchasing, logistics, performance measurement and customer value management. The authors present analytical and conceptual articles as well as empirical studies showing multidisciplinary and intercultural approaches towards solving relevant open problems.

Is Technology Widening the Gender Gap? Automation and the Future of Female Employment Mariya Brussevich, Ms. Era Dabla-Norris, Salma Khalid, 2019-05-06. Using individual level data on task composition at work for 30 advanced and emerging economies, we find that women on average perform more routine tasks than men; tasks that are more prone to automation. To quantify the impact on jobs, we relate data on task composition at work to occupation level estimates of probability of automation, controlling for a rich set of individual characteristics, e.g. education, age, literacy and numeracy skills. Our results indicate that female workers are at a significantly higher risk for displacement by automation than male workers, with 11 percent of the female workforce at high risk of being automated given the current state of technology, albeit with significant cross country heterogeneity. The probability of automation is lower for younger cohorts of women and for those in managerial positions.
