Table 1

It is important to note that the authors of the study did not find a significant difference in the number of children who were born to women who had been sexually abused in childhood compared to those who had not. This finding is consistent with the results of other studies that have found no significant difference in the number of children born to women who have been sexually abused in childhood compared to those who have not.

By the 1970s, however, the situation had changed. A number of studies had shown that the use of the word "gay" was not necessarily a negative label. In fact, it was often used by gay people themselves as a term of self-identification. This led to a re-evaluation of the word's meaning and its use in the media.
