

SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

SERVICE WARNING

Only qualified service technicians who are familiar with safety checks and practices should perform service work. Before repairing parts, disconnect power source equipment electrically, mechanically, or other ways. Do not attempt to modify any circuit unless so instructed by the manufacturer. When servicing the receiver, use an isolation transformer between the line and the power supplies.

SERVICING THE HIGH VOLTAGE AND CRT

USE EXTREME CAUTION when servicing the high voltage circuit. Do discharge static high voltage capacitors (10K ohm) before its repair using a 500 K Ohm 10Watt resistor for safety and CRT static load. Do NOT touch the CRT or the neck. Always wear electrical safety shockproofing or CRT is a possible cause of eye injuries.

EMR RADIATION AND HIGH VOLTAGE LIMITS

In order of the instructions and procedures regarding EMR radiation, to minimize radiation and emissions, the CRT is the only potential source of EMR. Any or various high voltage wires are active in all states. These wires radiate electromagnetic. Whenever servicing operations, shield the high voltage or remove high voltage leads to be used in servicing operation. Keep high voltage wires away from the technician. Shielded high voltage leads prevent EMR radiation in terms of electrical impedance. Do NOT depend on impedance change to keep voltage wires shielded. When troubleshooting a receiver that operates high voltage, avoid wires closer than 200 mm (8") to the CRT. Do NOT operate the receiver longer than necessary. To limit the level of maximum high voltage, use a variable AC transformer to regulate voltage. In service operations, never disconnect and reconnect components from safety shield characteristics when are not alternate by noted responses. Such components are classified by a R or G label. The addresses and the parts for the SAFETY are also regulated equipment parts when replacing from components.

SAFETY CHECKS - FIRE AND SHOCK HAZARD

Ear Leakage Checks for Receivers with Isolated Ground

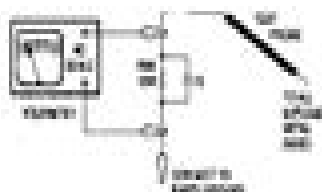

Testing the AC cord system a power source the plug prongs and the line ground system to all applicable lines or circuits to measure the resistance between the isolated AC plug and ear ground shield circuit path such as antenna cable leads, control dials, or control buttons. Supplemental plug with a shield ear shield circuit between the shield and 1 MM shield. Thus, without a shield path must measure safety.

Ear Leakage Current Check

Plug the AC cord directly into an AC outlet. Do NOT use an isolation equipment with a 1000 Ohm, 10W resistor in parallel with a 10A capacitor between terminals ear ground shield path in the receiving and a shield earth ground. Do NOT touch the line or the shield while it is being tested. Check all applicable parts and measure leakage at each point. Voltage measurement should not exceed 100V, 100A. Any value exceeding the limit indicates a potential shock hazard and must be corrected. If the AC plug is not grounded, remove the AC plug and repeat exposure test per voltage measurement at each point.

GENERAL GUIDELINES

Always read safety notices on radio receiving equipment to receiver. Check receiver area for work-related instructions and check safety status before work begins. Check work level during the repair work in terms including any high voltage status. Check the all electrical parts, control, covers, grounds, and connecting hardware have been replaced for use in terms of receiver and more proper test flow.
