provides solutions by bringing together validated measures and practical assessment strategies that can be used in both research and instruction. The book's theoretical foundations cover multimodal disciplinary writing, assessing disciplinary writing versus content area writing, and using assessment as a tool for disciplinary writing instruction. Practical methods for assessing writing in social studies, science, mathematics, English, and language arts, and other genres at the elementary, middle, and high school levels are included, as well as assessment strategies for specific populations of students such as undergraduate students, English learners, gifted and talented students, special needs students, and incarcerated students. This highly valued reference is essential for academic scholars, K12 teachers, and educational researchers who want to improve writing instruction and research in content and discipline-specific areas. By providing validated measures and methods for assessing disciplinary writing, this edited book helps bridge the gap between research and practice and enables practitioners to better measure student growth and improve writing instruction. This publication is the first step towards advancing research and improving writing instruction in content and discipline-specific areas.

Measuring Writing: Recent Insights into Theory, Methodology and Practice Elke van Steendam, Marion Tillema, Gert Rijlaarsdam, Huub van den Bergh, 2012-11-20. This volume provides a state-of-the-art overview of theory, methodology, and practices in the assessment of writing. The focus throughout the book is on the construct of writing and its assessment: what constitutes writing ability and how can it be defined in various contexts? This question cannot be answered without looking into the methodological question of how to validate and measure the construct of writing ability. Throughout the book, therefore, discussions integrate theoretical and methodological issues. A number of chapters discuss whether varying definitions and varying operationalizations of writing ability are needed in various contexts such as formative assessments versus summative assessments, large-scale assessments versus individual assessments, different tasks, different genres, and different languages, but also different age groups. A range of rating methods is investigated and discussed in this book. The ongoing debate on holistic versus analytic ratings and the different underlying conceptions of writing proficiency is a pertinent matter on which a number of chapters in this volume shed new light. The matter is discussed and analyzed from various angles such as generalizability of judgements and usability in formative contexts. Another fundamental debate concerns computer scoring of written products. A nuanced discussion of its validity is presented in this volume.

Assessing Performance Robert L. Johnson, James A. Penny, Belita Gordon, 2008-10-10. A comprehensive resource for assessment practitioners, this book provides step-by-step guidance for developing, administering, scoring, and validating a range of performance tasks, including literacy and other types of proficiency assessments. The authors explore how to establish the purpose of the assessment and how to develop scoring tools, train raters, reduce rater bias, review scores, and report results.

and use item level and test level analyses to optimize reliability and validity Clearly written and well organized the book includes many practical examples and accessible explanations of concepts and statistical procedures It encompasses the breadth of applications of performance assessment today from educational testing and the credentialing of professionals to research and program evaluation User friendly features include Checklists of activities to complete at each stage of a performance assessment End of chapter questions to facilitate self study Annotated suggestions for further reading A quick reference glossary of terms Examples drawn from multiple educational and professional licensure contexts Gwen Doty,2011-09-01 Learn how to create relevant and appropriate assessments throughout the learning cycle so your students will have ample opportunity to show competence in ways that make sense to them and are in accordance with their readiness levels This model regards assessment as part of a cycle of continuous learning by both teachers and students that results in all students meeting expected standards Great Genre Writing Lessons Heather Clayton,2003 Guide students through each step of the writing process from selecting topics to publishing polished pieces Step by step lessons and reproducibles cover five genres how to pieces fictional and personal narratives informational reports and essays and persuasive writing Teachers will also find graphic organizers rubrics and checklists examples of students writing extension activities and helpful hints for managing writers workshop For use with Grades 4 8
