Pathmaker II Steven Johnson,2014-12-30 Remember Pathmaker I s analogy of a jigsaw puzzle Suppose you are working a puzzle and come across two pieces that appear to have identical shapes They both seem to fit into a particular portion of the puzzle But logic tells you that only one of them will work How can you decide which piece belongs in that part of the puzzle One important way would be to observe the colors and patterns of the various pieces For instance if one piece is blue and the other is red and you are working on a portion of sky then blue would be the likely choice You see shape is only part of the matching process an important part to be sure and probably the first thing you d look at But color and pattern also play a significant role In a similar way as a worker you need to consider more than just the shape of your contribution The color and pattern of your personality and operating style also come into play Advances in Personality Assessment J. N. Butcher,C. D. Spielberger,Charles D. Spielberger,2013-10-31 First published in 1983 Volume two of the Advances in Personality Assessment series is devoted to invited papers from a number of distinguished researchers in its field The range of papers included in the present volume highlights the diversity of the developments in the field the high quality of conceptualization and the progress in empirical research
