Chemicals without Harm Ken Geiser, 2015-06-19 A proposal for a new chemicals strategy that we work to develop safer alternatives to hazardous chemicals rather than focusing exclusively on controlling them Today there are thousands of synthetic chemicals used to make our clothing cosmetics household products electronic devices even our children's toys Many of these chemicals help us live longer and more comfortable lives but some of these highly useful chemicals are also persistent toxic and dangerous to our health and the environment For fifty years the conventional approach to hazardous chemicals has focused on regulation barriers and protection In Chemicals without Harm Ken Geiser proposes a different strategy based on developing and adopting safer alternatives to hazardous chemicals rather than focusing exclusively on controlling them Geiser reviews past government policies focused on controlling chemicals describes government initiatives outside the United States that have begun to implement a more sustainable chemical policy and offers an overview of the chemicals industry and market He develops a safer chemicals policy framework that includes processes for characterizing classifying and prioritizing chemicals generating and using new chemical information and promoting transitions to safer chemicals The shift in strategy described by Geiser will require broad changes in science the chemicals economy and government policy Geiser shows that it is already beginning identifying an emerging movement of scientists corporate managers environmental activists and government leaders who are fashioning a new twenty first century approach to chemicals

Connected Parenting Jai Mackenzie, 2023-02-23 Changing practices and perceptions of parenthood and family life have long been the subject of intense public political and academic attention Recent years have seen growing interest in the role digital media and technologies can play in these shifts yet this topic has been under explored from a discourse analytical perspective In response this book's investigation of everyday parenting family practices and digital media offers a new and innovative exploration of the relationship between parenting family practices and digitally mediated connection This investigation is based on extensive digital and interview data from research with nine UK based single and or lesbian gay or bisexual parents who brought children into their lives in non traditional ways for example through donor conception surrogacy or adoption Through a novel approach that combines constructivist grounded theory with mediated discourse analysis this book examines connected family lives and practices in a way that transcends the limiting social biological and legal structures that still dominate concepts of family in contemporary society      Tribosystem Analysis Peter J. Ray,2024-02-19 In Psychopathology Fourth Edition best selling author William J Ray brings together current perspectives concerning the manner in which the human mind behavior and experience can be understood In addition to the traditional psychological literature this book draws from work in the cognitive and affective neurosciences epidemiology ethology and genetics Ray focuses on unifying and integrating the biopsychosocial understandings of human behavior within a broader consideration of human culture and language as it applies to psychopathology      Artificial General Intelligence Tom Everitt,Ben Goertzel,Alexey Potapov,2017-08-06 This book constitutes the proceedings of the 10th International Conference on Artificial General Intelligence AGI 2017 held in Melbourne VIC Australia in August 2017 The 24 regular papers presented in this book together with 1 short paper were carefully reviewed and selected from 35 submissions They cover topics such as architectures mathematical foundations algorithms safety understanding human cognition and philosophy      Contributions of Zoos and Aquariums to the Advancement of Marine Science Steven T. Kessel,Charles Knapp, Tracy A. Romano,Alistair Dove , Heather Jane Koldewey,2025-02-13 As zoological organizations evolve in the twenty first century to address the biodiversity extinction crisis and proactively demonstrate relevance in a changing public opinion landscape their conservation science portfolios continue to expand Public zoos and aquariums address these issues directly by conducting both ex and in situ research designed to advance our understanding of species while also detecting diagnosing and halting population declines in the wild

In particular the distinct nature of zoological organizations uniquely positions them to make significant contributions to marine science. The ability to care for and access a diverse suite of marine species provides the opportunity to understand their behavior, biology, physiology, which can inform ex situ investigations. Moreover, the broad skillsets of staff facilitate extensive collaborative research opportunities. These ongoing contributions to marine science have remained relatively underappreciated by others outside the community. Here we intend to raise awareness about these contributions and initiate further collaborative research opportunities. Building on an increasing body of literature, our goal is to curate a diverse portfolio of research that represents the contributions of zoos and aquariums to the field of marine science and to highlight the novel qualities of these conservation-based organizations. These can broadly be divided into four main categories: i Infrastructure: extensive capacity to care for a wide variety of animals; extensive veterinarian hospital spaces and equipment; advanced water quality and microbiology labs; research vessels; and the generation of funds through ticket sales and contributions. ii Animal care expertise in maintaining animals under professional human care, including breeding; diverse veterinary expertise; development of species-specific research techniques relevant to the study of wild populations. iii Dedicated research programs; personnel typically focused on wild populations, ecosystems, and. iv Education and social science policy and advocacy: education and outreach to large audiences to educate, engage on conservation issues, and inspiring the next generation of conservation champions, biologists. This will serve to further bring zoos and aquariums to the forefront as potential collaborators for other marine scientists conducting both in situ and ex situ research, particularly those studies that would benefit from the unique opportunities and rare and endangered species zoos and aquariums provide.

Pioneers in Public Health Jill Stewart, 2017-04-21. The public health movement involved numerous individuals who made the case for change and put new practices into place. However, despite a growing interest in how we understand history to inform current evidence-based practice, there is no book focusing on our progressive pioneers in public health and environmental health. This book seeks to fill that gap. It examines carefully selected public and environmental health pioneers who made a real difference to the UK's health, some with international influence. Many of these pioneers were criticised in their lifetimes, yet they had the strength of character to know what they were doing was fundamentally right and persevered, often against many odds. Including chapters on Thomas Fresh, John Snow, Duncan of Liverpool, Margaret McMillan, George Cadbury, Christopher Addison, Margery Spring Rice, and others. This book will help readers place pioneers in a wider context and to make more sense of their academic and practitioner work today, how evidence and what was historically understood by it underpins modern-day practice, and how these visionary pioneers developed their ideas into practice, some not fully appreciated until after their own deaths. Pioneers in Public Health sets the tone for a renewed focus on research into evidence-based public and environmental health, which has become subject of growing international interest in recent years.
