Dietary Intake and Cardiovascular Risk Factors William R. Harlan, Alan L. Hull, Robert P. Schumouder, Frances E. Thompson, Frances A. Larkin, J. Richard Landis, 1983 Attention is directed towards possible associations between nutritional variables and coronary artery disease risk factors based on data developed during the first US National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey 1971 75 Relative body weight weight height squared was determined to be an important predictor of serum cholesterol and urate levels and of blood pressure levels in US adults This predictor together with age and sex accounted for most of the explained variance Dietary variables based on results from 24 hours recall or on a food frequency questionnaire did not influence serum cholesterol or urate levels Alcohol intakes however correlated directly with serum urate level Serum Ca and Mg levels and serum glutamic oxalacetic transaminase were found to be directly and independently related to serum cholesterol and urate which were also related to each other Other positive and negative influences on serum cholesterol and urate levels are discussed Summarized data concerning this study are provided Dietary Intake and Cardiovascular Risk Factors, 1983

Teaching Assistants, Inclusion and Special Educational Needs Rob Webster, Anke A. de Boer, 2022-09-19 This book offers the first collection of international academic writing on the topic of teaching assistants It serves as an indicative summary of current research and thinking in this field and as a point of departure for future research and development With contributions from leading researchers the book draws together empirical work on the deployment and impact of teaching assistants from various perspectives and from a range of methodological approaches It highlights and celebrates the vital everyday contributions teaching assistants make to their schools and their communities from their role within classrooms to their moment by moment interactions with pupils and teachers The book examines the effect that teaching assistants can have on pupils learning and wellbeing and considers issues of over dependence on classroom paraprofessionals and the unintended consequences to which this can lead Bringing together work from a journal special issue with brand new and updated chapters the contributions offer insight into the liminal space between educator caregiver behaviour manager and facilitator of learning and of peer relations which characterizes the teaching assistant role This timely and important book will be essential reading for academics researchers and students interested in special educational needs disability and inclusion and those interested in the wider topic of paraprofessionals in labour markets SOMPA, System of Multicultural Pluralistic Assessment Jane R.
