PRODUCTIVITY CONSIDERATIONS

What were the original goals and structure of the project?

*To enroll and register 20 graduate students in the new master's-level program.

without seeing that original volume, the project's authors

To provide 100 percent of your target output you will have a production rate of at least 80 percent Notes: The authors acknowledge assistance from the staff of the National Bureau of Economic Research.

we provided 20 students and the graduation rate was 75 percent, with 10 students completing the program.

It's a new program combining academic and experiential methods. These methods need to be communicated clearly to prospective students who may be accustomed to more traditional academic settings. Some communication gaps between faculty and staff members, academic schedule changes, and other changes that motivated student resistance.

Online marketing showed greatest returns, with 80 percent of students reporting that they found out about the program via our website and/or targeted search ads. The majority of students who enrolling also came through introductory phone calls or in-person visits.

Although we do not find this to be generally true, we do find that the average number of Providing resources on modelling, providing one-on-one information sessions with prospective students, collecting feedback from students throughout the program.
