

Observation of Children Free Play

Play is important for children, there are plenty of reason why play is an important thing for children such as learning how to socialize, learning their cognitive, exploring their imagination and much more from just simply having fun. For example, in the video 'Cute Is a Four-Letter Word' by Sarah Curtis she talks about how important play is and how it affects children to adulthood. In the Video she stated that there were two groups of children who were split up, one group was direct instructions for play and the second one was free play and it shown a big difference by allowing children to play freely. This essay will reflect on my observation of children free play. During free play Chole went to the dramatic area to play in the kitchen with some friends, as soon as she got to the kitchen, she told one of her friends "ok you can get the drinks and I can get the food and we can eat." They started looking around the kitchen and grabbing all the cups, plates and utensils, the friend than told her "Chloe I need juice" Chole reply back to her "we have no more juice I need to make a order" Chole than went over to the counter and grab a toy ice cream sandwich and place next to her ear. The friend looks and said "Chloe that's not a phone" Chloe look at her and said "well it's my pretend phone" Chloe went on and pretended it was her phone and place an order for some juice. Soon after placing an order for juice Chloe saw some friends playing in the block area, she went to the block area and ask them "what are you guys doing?" one of the friends at the block area told her "we playing with the cars" Chloe ask them "can I have one car?" the friend replied and said "no you can't play with us" Chloe got upset and told them "fine I'm going to go on a bus and you guys can't ride on it" as she walks of, she was stomping her feet and went back to the dramatic area (Kitchen). She told some of her friends at the kitchen "you guys let's make a bus" one of the little girls said "Chloe but
