Understanding Key Issues of Sustainable Wood Production in the Pacific Northwest, 2005 Researchers involved with the Pacific Northwest PNW Research Station Sustainable Wood Production Initiative have outlined some of the barriers and opportunities for sustainable wood production in the region Sustainable wood production is defined as the capacity of forests to produce wood products and services on a long term basis and in the context of human activity and use The collective findings of these papers suggest that in the future the region's wood supply will primarily come from private land and the barriers and opportunities related to sustainable wood production will have more to do with future markets harvest potential land use changes and sustainable forestry options than with traditional sustained yield outputs Private lands in the PNW should be able to sustain recent historical harvest levels over the next 50 years but regional changes in sawmilling capacity and uncertain market conditions may affect wood production in the region Public perceptions of forestry land use changes and alternative forestry options are also discussed These papers present preliminary findings and proposals for future work designed to help us understand the key issues related to sustainable wood production Mineral Facts and Problems United States.
