An Assessment of ARPA-E National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Policy and Global Affairs, Board on Science, Technology, and Economic Policy, Committee on Evaluation of the Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy (ARPA-E), 2017-08-28 In 2005 the National Research Council report Rising Above the Gathering Storm recommended a new way for the federal government to spur technological breakthroughs in the energy sector It recommended the creation of a new agency the Advanced Research Projects Agency Energy or ARPA E as an adaptation of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency DARPA model widely considered a successful experiment that has funded out of the box transformative research and engineering that made possible the Internet GPS and stealth aircraft

This new agency was envisioned as a means of tackling the nation's energy challenges in a way that could translate basic research into technological breakthroughs while also addressing economic, environmental, and security issues. Congress authorized ARPA-E in the 2007 America COMPETES Act and requested an early assessment following 6 years of operation to examine the agency's progress toward achieving its statutory mission and goals. This report documents the results of that assessment. It includes both an operational assessment of the agency's funding programs and a technical assessment of its awards to the extent possible. Astroparticle, Particle, Space Physics and Detectors for Physics Applications S. Giani, 2012

The exploration of the subnuclear world is done through increasingly complex experiments covering a wide range of energy and performed in a large variety of environments ranging from particle accelerators, underground detectors, to satellites and the space laboratory. Among recent advances, one has to indicate, for instance, first results obtained from space and LHC experiments and progress done in preparation of the latter experiments, upgrades including plans for the LHC machine upgrade. The achievement of these research programs calls for novel techniques, new materials, and instrumentation to be used in detectors often of large scale. Therefore, fundamental physics is at the forefront of technological advance and also leads to many applications. Among these, medical applications have a particular importance due to health and social benefits they bring to the public.
