

Imagine an agent in the city of Arad, Romania, enjoying a touring holiday. The agent's performance measure contains many factors: it wants to improve its suntan, improve its Romanian, take in the sights, enjoy the nightlife (as much as it is), avoid hangovers, and so on. The decision problem is a complex one involving many tradeoffs and careful reading of guidebooks. Now, suppose the agent has decided to fly out of Bucharest the following day. In that case, the agent's performance measure is modified to include the goal of getting to Bucharest. Courses of action are evaluated in terms of the expected utility of the goal, selected without further consideration. The agent's performance measure is modified to include the goal of getting to Bucharest. Goals help organize behavior and hence the actions it needs to take. The agent's performance measure is modified to include the goal of getting to Bucharest.

GOAL FORMULATION

We will assume that the goal is satisfied when the agent reaches a goal state (on its behalf) what state is the level of "nearness" the agent would like to be because at that point it has reached too many steps and states to consider. We assume that the agent will move from one state to another. Each
