Semiotics and Title Sequences Michael Betancourt, 2017-09-19 Title sequences are the most obvious place where photography and typography combine on screen yet they are also a commonly neglected part of film studies. Semiotics and Title Sequences presents the first theoretical model and historical consideration of how text and image combine to create meaning in title sequences for film and television before extending its analysis to include subtitles, intertitles, and the narrative role for typography. Detailed close readings of classic films starting with The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari and including To Kill a Mockingbird, Dr. Strangelove, and The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly along with designs from television programs such as Magnum P.I., Castle, and Vikings present a critical assessment of title sequences as both an independent art form and an introduction to the film that follows.

American Learned Men and Women with Czechoslovak Roots Mila Rechcigl, 2020-11-18 Apart from a few articles, no comprehensive study has been written about the learned men and women in America with Czechoslovak roots. That's what this compendium is all about, with the focus on immigration from the period of mass migration and beyond, irrespective of whether they were born in their European ancestral homes or whether they have descended from them. Czech and Slovak immigrants, including Bohemian Jews, have brought to the New World their talents, their ingenuity, their technical skills, their scientific knowhow, and their humanistic and spiritual upbringing, reflecting upon the richness of their culture and traditions developed throughout centuries in their ancestral home. This accounts for the remarkable success and achievements of these settlers in their new home, transcending through their descendants, as this monograph demonstrates. The monograph has been organized into sections by subject areas: i.e. Scholars, Social Scientists, Biological Scientists, and Physical Scientists. Each individual entry is usually accompanied with literature and additional biographical sources for readers who wish to pursue a deeper study. The selection of individuals has been strictly based on geographical ground without regards to their native language or ethnic background. This was because under the Habsburg rule, the official language was German and any nationalistic aspirations were not tolerated. Consequently, it would be virtually impossible to determine their innate ethnic roots or how the respective individuals felt. Doing it in any other way would be a mere guessing and thus less objective.

Lawrence Tierney Burt Kearns, 2022-12-06 Lawrence Tierney (1919–2002) was the kind of actor whose natural swagger and gruff disposition made him the perfect fit for the Hollywood tough guy archetype. Known for his erratic and oftentimes violent nature, Tierney drew upon his bellicose reputation throughout his career, a reputation that made him one of the most feared and mythologized characters in the industry. Born in Brooklyn to Irish-American parents, Tierney worked in theater productions in New York before moving to Hollywood where he signed with RKO Radio Pictures in 1943. His biggest roles would come in Dillinger (1945) in which he played 1930s gangster and bank robber

John Dillinger and Robert Wise's film noir classic Born to Kill 1947 Despite his natural talents Tierney was trouble from the start struggling with alcoholism and mental instability that emboldened him to start fights whenever and wherever he could The continued bouts of alcohol fueled rage his subsequent stints in jail and his continued attempts at rehabilitation curtailed his acting career Unable to find work throughout much of the 1960s he did a stint in Europe before eventually returning to New York where he took odd jobs as a construction worker bartender and hansom cab driver In the mid 1980s Tierney returned to acting With a somewhat cooler head he established himself again with recurring roles in shows such as Seinfeld and Star Trek The Next Generation He would take on his final projects as a septuagenarian in Reservoir Dogs 1992 and Armageddon 1998 where his on set behavior would once again draw the ire of his colleagues and studio representatives He would go down swinging just shy of his eighty third birthday his tough guy image solidly intact until the end In Lawrence Tierney Hollywood's Real Life Tough Guy author Burt Kearns traces Tierney's storied life from his days as Dillinger to his clash with Quentin Tarantino at the end of his film career to his final public appearances The first official biography of the late actor the book draws on the writings of Hollywood reporters and gossip columnists who first reported on Tierney's antics and exclusive interviews with surviving colleagues friends family members and victims Through their words and his research Kearns paints a portrait of Tierney's brutish behavior and the industry's reaction to the pugnacious star drawing parallels and the line between the man and the characters that made him a Hollywood legend

Harry Langdon Gabriella Oldham, Mabel Langdon, 2017-04-18 Among silent film comedians three names stand out Charlie Chaplin Buster Keaton and Harold Lloyd but Harry Langdon indisputably deserves to sit among them as the fourth king In films such as The Strong Man 1926 and Long Pants 1927 Langdon parlayed his pantomime talents expressive eyes and childlike innocence into silent era stardom This in depth biography which features behind the scenes accounts and

Together they survey his early work on the stage at the turn of the twentieth century as well as his iconic routines and characters. They also evaluate his failures from the early sound period, including his decision to part ways with director Frank Capra. Despite his dwindling popularity following the introduction of talkies, Langdon persevered and continued to perform in theater, radio, and film literally until his dying day, leaving behind a unique and brilliant body of work. Featuring never-before-published stories and photos from his immediate family, this biography is a fascinating and revealing look at an unsung silent film giant. Albert Capellani Christine Leteux, 2015-12-10

In recent years, technology has given films of the silent era and their creators a second life as new processes have eased their restoration and distribution. Among the films benefitting from these developments are the works of director Albert Capellani (1874-1931), whose oeuvre was instrumental in the development of cinema in the early 1900s and whose contributions rival those of D. W. Griffith. For the first time in English, Christine Leteux's essential biography of Capellani offers a detailed assessment of the groundbreaking director. Capellani began his career in France at what was at the time the biggest film company in the world, Pathé. There he directed the first multireel version of Les Misérables in 1912, as well as his masterpiece Germinal in 1913. After immigrating to the United States, Capellani worked at a number of production houses, including Metro Pictures Corporation, where he produced his two best-known films, The House of Mirth (1918) and The Red Lantern (1919). He was well known for making stage actors into movie stars, and Mistinguett, Stacia Napierkowska, and Alla Nazimova all rose to prominence under his direction. The ups and downs of Capellani's career paralleled the evolution of the film industry and demonstrated the fickle nature of success. His technical and aesthetic achievements, however, paved the way for future filmmakers. Featuring a foreword by Academy Award-winning film historian Kevin Brownlow, Leteux's intimate biography paints a fascinating portrait of one of the leading pioneers of early cinema and provides a new window into the origins of the moving picture. Improvising Out Loud Jeff Corey, 2017-05-16

Jeff Corey (1914-2002) made a name for himself in the 1940s as a character actor in films like Superman and The Mole Men (1951), Joan of Arc (1948), and The Killers (1946). Everything changed in 1951 when he was summoned before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Corey refused to name names and was promptly blacklisted, which forced him to walk away from a vibrant livelihood as an actor and embark on a career as one of the industry's most revered acting instructors. In Improvising Out Loud: My Life Teaching Hollywood How to Act, Corey recounts his extraordinary story. Among the actors who would soon fill his classes were James Dean, Kirk Douglas, Jane Fonda, Rob Reiner, Jack Nicholson, and Leonard Nimoy. In 1962, when the blacklist ended, Corey was one of the industry's first trailblazers to seamlessly reboot his acting career and secure roles in some of the classic films of the era, including Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969), True Grit (1969), and Little Big Man (1970), in which he starred as the infamous Wild Bill Hickok Throughout his life Corey sought to capture the human heart in conflict in terror in love and in all of its small triumphs His memoir which he wrote with his daughter Emily Corey provides a unique and personal perspective on the man whose teaching inspired some of Hollywood s biggest names to star in the roles that made them famous
