

The figure below shows the three types of survivorship curves.

Label	Type I, II, or III?	Description of strategy	Example organisms that use this strategy
A	Type I	Organisms have very low offspring and take very good care of them to ensure their survival. High survival at young, because it's relatively likely to die as they age.	Large mammals (ex. humans, elephants, horses, whales, whales)
B	Type II	Organisms equally likely to die at any point throughout their life.	Small animals (ex. Robins!) Predating birds (larks)
C	Type III	Organisms have many offspring and do not invest much care to ensure they survive.	Fish Small insects Small plants

What is meant by population distribution?

To summarize, the three main population distribution patterns could be shown in the table below:

Type of distribution	Picture of distribution	Why use this pattern?
Clumped	 	VERY COMMON Safety in numbers, social interactions, mating and caring for young, resources are clumped.
Dispersed	 	Scarcity of resources, territoriality
Random	 	VERY COMMON It's random (ex. food is blown by wind, and small seed germinates in random locations).

A Biologist's Guide to Mathematical Modeling in Ecology and Evolution Sarah P. Otto, Troy Day, 2011-09-19 Thirty years ago biologists could get by with a rudimentary grasp of mathematics and modeling Not so today In seeking to answer fundamental questions about how biological systems function and change over time the modern biologist is as likely to rely on sophisticated mathematical and computer based models as traditional fieldwork In this book Sarah Otto and Troy Day provide biology students with the tools necessary to both interpret models and to build their own The book starts at an elementary level of mathematical modeling assuming that the reader has had high school mathematics and first year calculus Otto and Day then gradually build in depth and complexity from classic models in ecology and evolution to more intricate class structured and probabilistic models The authors provide primers with instructive exercises to introduce readers to the more advanced subjects of linear algebra and probability theory Through examples they describe how models have been used to understand such topics as the spread of HIV chaos the age structure of a country speciation and extinction Ecologists and evolutionary biologists today need enough mathematical training to be able to assess the power and limits of biological models and to develop theories and models themselves This innovative book will be an indispensable guide to the world of mathematical models for the next generation of biologists A how to guide for developing new mathematical models in biology Provides step by step recipes for constructing and analyzing models Interesting biological applications Explores classical models in ecology and evolution Questions at the end of every chapter Primers cover important mathematical topics Exercises with answers Appendixes summarize useful rules Labs and advanced material available
