Abstract: This study was designed to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of sedentary, middle-aged, overweight women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were randomly assigned to either the intervention group or the control group. The intervention group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact aerobically and resistance training program. The control group performed no exercise. The results showed that the intervention group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health-related quality of life than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact aerobically and resistance training program can improve the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of sedentary, middle-aged, overweight women.
