Crazy Twisters!

Most people would agree that a tornado doesn't need any special ingredients to cause massive amounts of destruction. After all, even an EF-0, the weakest category of tornado on the Enhanced Fujita Scale, can cause an average of $1 million in damage. When you think about it, it's not surprising that tornadoes are the most common weather-related natural disasters in the United States. Although they are often called "twisters," tornadoes are actually a type of storm that forms over land or water. They are most common in the central United States, where they can cause significant damage to property and even loss of life. However, many tornadoes go the extra mile, appearing in places where they are not expected, such as over the ocean or in the mountains.

Shark Attack!

Sun, sand, water, waves...there's nothing quite like a trip to the beach. Occasionally, however, the fun and relaxation are interrupted by every ocean swimmer's worst nightmare – a shark attack! While shark attacks are rare, they do happen. In fact, there are about 100 shark attacks reported each year in the United States. Most attacks occur in the summer months, when more people are swimming in the ocean. However, shark attacks can happen at any time of the year. In fact, there have been shark attacks in all 50 states and in several foreign countries. While most shark attacks are not fatal, they can be very scary. In fact, some people who have been attacked by a shark will never swim in the ocean again. However, most shark attacks are not fatal, and many people who have been attacked by a shark go on to live normal lives.

SLEEPING ON ICE

When the weather turns cold, most people going on vacation choose to travel to warm places where they can temporarily escape the winter chill. Beach resort or island cruise, anyone? However, if you can't get enough of the snow and ice, perhaps you'd rather spend your winter vacation in the most wintry way possible – in an ice hotel!

An ice hotel is just what it sounds like: it's a hotel made entirely from snow and ice. Most commonly, it's built using a snow-ice mixture called snice, which is stronger and insulates better than snow or ice by itself. Most ice hotels are constructed using a steel frame, which is then filled in with the snice. When the steel frame is taken off, only a thick, sturdy, ice-walled building remains. Some ice hotels are structured like traditional hotels, while others offer guests the chance to stay in the over individual igloos. Regardless of style, all ice hotels depend for their existence on the temperature staying below freezing for the entire winter; consequently, there are only about 20 ice hotels in the world, and they are only found in places like Alaska, Canada, Sweden, Finland, Norway, and high elevations.

Walls aren't the only part of an ice hotel made from ice. Frozen food provides the building material for each chair, couch, table, desk, shelf, and light fixture inside the building as well. (Chairs and couches are covered with animal fur to make them comfortable for sitting.) Many ice hotels even offer amenities such as ice restaurants, bars, churches, and meeting rooms – all carved from solid ice, of course. Even small details like the cups in the ice restaurant are made of small chunks of ice if it can be made from ice, it probably is.

Yes – even the beds in an ice hotel are made of ice. While it might seem like a cold night's sleep, many people who have stayed in an ice hotel say it's a unique and memorable experience. However, most people who stay in an ice hotel do so for a short time, and many people who stay in an ice hotel do so for a special occasion, such as a wedding or a birthday celebration.
