Revalidation of doctors Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Health Committee, 2011-02-08 The Committee says the GMC should be accountable to Parliament The GMC is formally accountable to the Privy Council but In the absence of a mechanism which makes this accountability effective the MPs intend to exercise this function themselves on behalf of Parliament Revalidation of doctors has been under discussion for over 10 years This is considered too long the GMC is expected to ensure that there are no further delays and that the current target date of late 2012 is achieved Reviewing the GMC s current proposals MPs warn that too little attention has been given to the issue of how to deal with doctors whose practice gives cause for concern The Committee is also concerned that the use of the word remediation may have the effect of pre judging the appropriate response to a particular set of circumstances In relation to appraisal systems MPs broadly support the proposal that revalidation should be based on the conclusions of employers appraisal systems However there is evidence showing that the record of employers on appraisal is patchy and the importance of patient and colleague involvement in the appraisal process is emphasised MPs also felt there should be clear guidance about how Responsible Officers should act when a conflict of interest arises between their responsibility to their employer and their responsibility to the GMC Finally the issue of doctors for whom English is a second language was considered As the body responsible for revalidation and with a commitment to introducing it by late 2012 the GMC is expected to satisfy itself that it has the necessary powers to fulfil this role if it is not satisfied it needs to say so publicly and report to Parliament what changes are necessary to allow it to fulfil its function effectively The Doctor's Handbook Tony White, 2018-04-19 Many doctors do not receive training early in their careers on the broad range of non clinical aspects of their work and confront day to day issues for which initial medical education has failed to prepare them Experienced doctors and consultants can also experience a similar lack of accessible reference material on these aspects of their role and for the non clinical training of their juniors This book and its companion volume The Doctor's Handbook Part 1 managing your role beyond clinical medicine have been written to address these and other needs Previously published as The Specialist Registrar and New Consultant Handbook these completely revised and reconfigured volumes reflect the changing everyday work of specialist trainees registrars and consultants Topics covered in Volume 2 include Occupational Health Law Diana Kloss, 2008-04-15 A new edition has become needed because of the large number of changes in the law since the last edition was published in 1998 These include the Human Rights Act the Data Protection Act 1998 which was brought into force in 2000 new case law on compensation particularly with regard to stress the Woolf reforms on civil procedures especially regarding expert witnesses and developments in equal opportunities law e g maternity leave The section on disability discrimination has been completely rewritten Other new features include genetic testing in employment and the new offence of corporate manslaughter and details regarding the new training and evaluation criteria that occupational health professionals are required to satisfy
